- Algorithm Benchmarking: Systematically evaluated three distinct modeling schemes:
 - LinearSVC (Support Vector Classification) achieved a top-tier accuracy of 89%.
 - Bidirectional LSTM (Long Short-Term Memory) delivered 87% accuracy by capturing sequential dependencies through Word Embeddings.
 - Random Forest integrated with Word2Vec reached 85% accuracy.

Project Title: Financial Fraud Detection and Transaction Behavioral Analysis via Integrated K-Means Clustering and Random Forest Classification – Dicoding Indonesia March 2026

- Addressed the need for a financial security system to identify suspicious transaction behaviors within a dataset of 2,512 samples. The primary goal was to perform pattern grouping (clustering) and build a highly accurate predictive model (classification).
- The Random Forest model delivered exceptional performance with 99% Accuracy, 99% Precision, and a 99% F1-Score. The project successfully and efficiently identified 3 risk target segments.
